

Tiger Aircraft Chooses Exxon Elite as its Preferred Engine Oil

Martinsburg, WV - Tiger Aircraft LLC has announced that Exxon aviation engine oils will be used exclusively to factory-fill every Tiger Aircraft coming off the manufacturer's assembly line. Exxon Elite will be recommended for use in the aircraft and each plane will include a certificate for a free case of Exxon Elite when delivered.

Additionally, Tiger has negotiated preferred pricing for all Exxon Elite purchases for owners of new and older Tiger aircraft. This is a new measure of support important to the owners of the entire Tiger manufacturing fleet including Tigers, Cheetahs, and other models. Detailed aviation oil ordering information will soon be available on the Tiger website (www.tigeraircraft.com).

"The Tiger is a plane with a well-deserved reputation for superior performance and the company's selection of Exxon Elite is an extremely positive endorsement of the new formulation technology available in our engine oil," said Nick Barrett of ExxonMobil Aviation Lubricants.

"We know the new Tiger is an elite performer and we are convinced the plane will benefit from the aviation engine oils manufactured by Exxon. A brand new Tiger is an investment and we want every new owner to experience the best protection available," said Gene Criss, President of Tiger Aircraft LLC.
